User Stories

1. As a designer, I want to edit a master component and see how it will affect instances within the design as a whole, so that I can be confident the change worked and looks good.
2. As a designer, I want to go through component onboarding so that I understand how they work using the latest features and capabilities.
3. As a designer, I want to see a list of properties I can override, so I know whether to update a master component and avoid breaking components out of frustration.
